

I strongly object to allowing cell phones to be used in flight on airlines. As a frequent flyer, while it might be convenient to be able to make a quick call to do some business, the effect of dozens of people talking at once in an enclosed space would be maddening. There is already too much noise in the cabin. Inconsiderate cell phone users would only make it worse.